

Iron County Register

E. D. AKE, Editor.

VOLUME XXVI. NUMBER 44.
IRONTON, MO., MAY 4, 1893.

An extra session of Congress will be called to convene before the middle of September.

Just to show him how it ought to be done, why can't Adlai take a week's vacation in Maxwell's Guillotine Department?

It is said that the admission fees to all the World's Fair sights will foot up a total of $19.50. This not official, but probably true.

It costs a penalty of $600 a year to manufacture oleomargarine in the United States. And yet there are dumphools who call this "a free country."

SECRETARY CABLE will soon find that a Democrat may not tread Republican paths in peace. The streets of the Democratic Jerusalem are not paved with gold alone, but are mosaiced with silver.

THE REPUBLIC intimates that if Max Judd is objected to by the Austrian government, he ought to be given something Equally Good elsewhere. Mr. Judd possesses a legally abbreviated surname, and, we understand, is a fine checker-player—or, possibly, it is chess-playing he excels in. But, either, both, or neither, we'd like to know whence his "clinch" on a foreign mission?

For twenty-five years Republicans, exclusively, were in possession of the Federal offices. Then came a four-years' interregnum, but the rule was followed to allow all presidential appointees to fill the full four years of the term for which they were last appointed. In many instances, this gave Republican officials two or three years' service under a Democratic President. Then a Republican President was elected, and the Democrats were "flipped out" incontinent, and their places filled by the "faithful." Now we are again told that the four-years term will be strictly observed, and no Republican will have to go before the expiration of his commission. This may be heroic virtue, and Justice may have charge of the entertainment; but she appears to us to tenderly place the tip of her cork-soled slipper on the rump of the enemy, while the necks of her worshippers feel the full weight of her time-honored leaden heel.

Or the Haefner-Kendall imbroglio, last week's Charleston Democrat says: In public estimation the Scott County Newsboy seems to be having a little the best of it in its fight upon certain clerical alleged hypocrisies. Whether the appearances are true or deceptive remains to be seen; but the clamor is coming from all parts of the Charleston district that Presiding Elder Kendall must do something radical to clear his skirts of vague and indefinite charges or insinuations regarding his character as a custodian of missionary funds. It is understood that Rev. Kendall endeavored to secure an indictment against the Newsboy publisher for criminal libel last week. Whether he succeeded is not yet known. Editor Hafner is fearless of the result, he says.

Of the same matter, the Newsboy of the 29th ult. says: Circuit court has adjourned and still we have heard of no libel or slander suit against this paper. The grand jury refused to pay any attention to the little tale of woe told by Kendall and his cabinet, and so the matter stands. We suggest that Kendall take his Chinaman and go west and grow up with the country.

Perhaps it would just as well for all parties to drop the controversy and "let the dead past bury its dead."

James and Jacob.

Ed. Register.—In your issue of last week, the undersigned, with many others, no doubt, have read the sermon on the use of the "tongue," and were both interested and edified.

But I must ask pardon of the author for referring him or her to one or two slight mistakes which I notice near the outset.

Notice is taken of these as they may be slightly misleading to the younger class of your numerous readers.

The first error occurs in brackets and is as follows—"James (which, by the way, is the Greek name of Jacob.)"

This is inaccurate. James is a purely English name, whether used as a christian or a surname, and does not occur in that form in any other language. Jacob is a Hebrew name, and when translated into Greek is Jakob, and in both languages is indeclinable. The Hebrew is Ya-a-kov, and if latinized would be Jacobus. For James the proper equivalent in Greek is Iakobos, and is so written in all the passages referred to in the Greek text, except the unnecessary grammatical inflections to denote the several cases.

However, to be just to your author, I will say that Josephus, who wrote in Greek, uses the term Iakobos as the equivalent of Jacob in his history of the Jews.

The second error to which I very respectfully refer is in reference to the lost tribes, which reads as follows: "We are accustomed to hear of the lost tribes of Israel. There were no lost tribes. The secession that took place under Rehoboam was a religious as well as a political movement."

The secession under the accession of Rehoboam, was immediately on the demise of Solomon, and was by Divine appointment as a penalty for that monarch's wilful departure from the true worship of God and other sins. I. Kings, II. chapter, 31-34 vs. II. Chronicles, II. 4.

This was about 975 years before the Nativity of Christ.

But the final dispersion of these same ten tribes took place about 250 years afterwards, when they, with their King Hosea, were carried away by Shalmanassar into Assyria, "and placed in Halah by the river Gozan, and in the city of the Medes." II. Kings 17. 6. From this captivity they never returned. Henceforth, they are treated in history as the "lost tribes," and sometimes specifically named as the "ten lost tribes." They have been ever since and are still lost to history. It is true much speculation has been indulged in by book-makers in reference to their destiny, but it is all speculation or the product of the imagination.

The captivity with which we are most familiar, was that of the Jews in and about Jerusalem in the times of Zedekiah, commonly called the seventy years captivity.

This exile occurred 132 years subsequent to the carrying away of the ten tribes from Samaria, and 588 years before the advent of Christ.

Some notice is due to the reference of St. Paul, contained in his speech before Agrippa, which might be spoken of as an incident rather than a fact in proper form.

St. Paul does refer to a hope indulged in by what he calls the twelve tribes. But what this hope, (elpidi) refers to is not quite so clear. The term that stress seems to be laid upon is the twelve tribes which St. Paul is made to say entertains this hope.

But dodekaphylon, which is literal enough generally, is, in this place, but a periphrasis for the Jewish nation, and has not, necessarily any reference to the existence (historically) of the ten tribes in the text.

Hoping I will be excused for these few lines, which are only meant to be an innocent explanation of what I conceive may have been only an oversight of the excellent discourse of the thoughtful person who has thus kindly presented for our instruction and social improvement an admirable annotation of this part of the Sacred Canon.

T. F. C. JACOBOS.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary Giessing, nee Hoehn, widow of the late Chas. Giessing, deceased, died at her home at Valley Forge, St. Francois county, Mo., at 9 o'clock p. m. April 18, 1893. She had been a sufferer for several years from heart trouble, but the immediate cause of her death was catarrh of the stomach.

Mrs. Giessing was born in Neiderhausen-and-der-Nah. Kries Krietz-Nacht, Prussia, Germany, Aug. 24, 1829, being at the time of her death aged 63 years, 7 months and 24 days. She was the youngest of nine children, two of whom died in infancy and four of whom survive her—John Hoehn, aged 78, Mrs. Sophia Moll, of this county; and Peter Hoehn aged 68, and Mrs. Elizabeth Wehrle; still residing in Germany. She immigrated to this country in December, 1850, and in May following, 1851, was married to Charles Giessing. Nine children were born to them, eight of whom are living, one having died in early childhood. These are John and Charles, living in Farmington; Peter, Henry, Fred, William P., Daniel F., and Elizabeth S., of Valley Forge.

After marriage Mr. and Mrs. Giessing lived at Iron Mountain until 1867. In 1860 Mr. Giessing and Peter Hoehn, his brother-in-law, bought the Valley Forge Flouring Mill, the latter attending to the business until 1867, when he returned to Germany, and Mr. Giessing removed with his family to Valley Forge and took charge of it, conducting it up to the time of his death, which occurred in February 1870. Mrs. Giessing then, with the assistance of her sons, John and Charles, continued successfully to conduct the business until 1882, when John and Charles bought the Farmington Roller Mills, and Mrs. Giessing took her sons, Peter and Henry, in with her, and subsequently in 1885 Fred was added to the firm. They did a large milling business, to which was added an extensive merchandise store in 1888.

Mrs. Giessing was a woman of strong character, a faithful and devoted wife and a loving and provident mother to her children, who will ever love and cherish her memory. She was a consistent member of the Lutheran faith, and her funeral was preached at the church in Farmington, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, after which the remains were followed to the Odd Fellows cemetery by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends, and laid to rest beside those of her deceased husband.—Farmington News.

Normal Training School.

A Normal Training School will be opened Monday, May 24, 1893, in the Public School Building at Ironton, Mo.

This school is especially designed for teachers, and those who contemplate teaching and who desire to prepare themselves for thorough work in the schoolroom. I want to enroll in this school, a teacher for every district in the county—I want to do this because I feel that I know just what you need, and believe I can send you away a stronger and better equipped teacher.

The course will include everything required by law to be taught in the public schools of Missouri, and is open for all who may desire to take it. Every teacher should earnestly and honestly strive for a two or a three years' certificate under the amended school law, and there are very few country teachers who can pass the examination necessary to attain this desideratum without some training other than that proposed by the four weeks' institute. Now I propose to give you just such work as will enable you to reach the goal. Will you profit by the hint, and the opportunity thus placed before you?

This school will continue in session just four weeks, and be followed immediately by the regular County Institute for licensing teachers, thus throwing the examinations late in June and bringing them under the amended school law, thereby making second grade certificates good for two years. Do not forget the date, and let me hear from you immediately.

A. P. VANCE, County Com'r.

The "Twice-a-Week" St. Louis Republic is unquestionably the best and cheapest national news journal published in the country. It has led the fight for Tariff Reform and stands without a rival as the leading and representative Democratic paper of the United States. It is issued each Tuesday and Friday, fourteen to sixteen pages every week for ONLY ONE DOLLAR A YEAR—a great semi-weekly paper for the price of a weekly. It gives the news at least half a week earlier and much more fully than any weekly. Everybody should subscribe for it at once and get the news fresh and complete, now, as for the first time in 32 years the Democratic party is in absolute control of the Executive and Legislative Departments of the National Government. An extra copy will be sent free, for one year, to the sender of each Club of four new subscribers, with four dollars. Write for free sample copies, and raise a Club.
